

From Our Juror,

Amy Kurtz Lansing

As the Curator at the Florence Griswold Museum in Old Lyme, I work on a daily basis with paintings inspired by the Connecticut landscape. While our collection consists primarily of pictures executed a century ago, artists continue to respond to the beauty of our region. The works in this year's Granby Land Trust Juried Art Show attest to the vitality of the landscape tradition. I looked for pictures that demonstrate an appreciation for the properties they depict, and that are executed with the greatest skill. The pictures that appealed to me the most are ones in which the artist found beauty in one of nature's quiet moments. Having so many wonderful pieces to choose from made it a difficult job, and I applaud all those who participated.
